

NACD Texas TriCities Chapter | Houston

Innovation & Disruption – Key Questions Boards Should Be Asking

1. Which technologies and trends will have the most impact on your industry or company? (Think new business models and changing consumer behaviors)
2. Do you need to rethink your board composition and director succession planning to better align with strategy and risk oversight?
3. What is the best Board structure for dealing with this new innovation era? Do you need a technology committee or advisor?
4. What changes do you think might be required in the Proxy for disclosures about technologies, business model changes, etc.?
5. What changes in investment and capital allocation are needed to compete in the future?
6. How might you need to rethink your talent and success planning strategy given how these forces are changing the business landscape?
7. Which technologies and trends will have the most impact on your industry or company? (Think new business models and changing consumer behaviors)
8. Do you need to rethink your board composition and director succession planning to better align with strategy and risk oversight?
9. What is the best Board structure for dealing with this new innovation era? Do you need a technology committee or advisor?
10. What changes do you think might be required in the Proxy for disclosures about technologies, business model changes, etc.?
11. What changes in investment and capital allocation are needed to compete in the future?
12. How might you need to rethink your talent and success planning strategy given how these forces are changing the business landscape?